The exchanges at New York, excluding stocks, are about 22.1 per cent, below those of the corresponding time last year. Outside of New York the situation is more favorable; at Pittsburg, however, the strikes caused a decline. At most of the manufacturing centers the volume of business is increasing much less than it has been, although it still is larger than it was a year ago. The total exchanges for the second week in July were exchanges for the second week in July were $1,086,582,262, against $1,278,393,425 at the corresponding week 1881. The manufacturing cities continue to produce beyond the consuming capacities of the country; appearance of the country; appearance of the consuming capacities of the country; appearance of the consuming capacities of the country; all facilities at band, even a place of worship speculation goes beyond reasonable proporepeculation goes beyond reasonable proportion; while inflated prices cause contests between Isbor and capital, and by increasing imports and decreasing exports induces a steady movement of gold to Europe. Until these things change no healthy or sustained improvement can be expected. The average prices of the principal necessaries is now 11.9 per cent, higher than it was a year ago. The crop reports, as copied by the APPEAL from the surrounding Memphis cotton dis trict, show a decided improvement. Wheat and oats are harvesting, and turn out no only satisfactory, but better than has been known for a number of years. Clover and the grasses appear to be irregular in their production, accounts in different sections difbeen kept back by cold, but the summer weather of the last week has had an invigorating effect. Cotton accounts have been very gloomy; in many instances it was plowed up and corn sown in its place. The later accounts, however, show great improvelater accounts account and robustness. In places local rains, falling with excessive violence, have washed away the soil or drowned out the plant. Where a second flood invaded low lands the condition of cotton is generally discouraging. The berries, apples, peaches, beans, potatoes and other vegetables have done well, and the districts shipping fruits and vegetables to the North have been more numerous than on any former year. After the severe losses of last fall the money these commodities bring in is a most welcome blessing. Thunder, lightning and heavy rain-storms, with occasional tornadoes, co tinue to prevail, and are causes of much anxiety and some loss. The advance has been almost wholly in articles of food. Here lies the cause of the existing strikes. It is worth noticing that the superintendent of the mint is willing, on the provisions of an act passed a few weeks ago, to receive certified checks, payable in gold, for bars, instead of requiring the purchasers to pay for them with gold coin. HOLLY SPRINGS, June 18 .- The Mem phis, Selma and Brunswick railroad is now,

On Wednesday morning the young ladies of the graduating class gave one of the finest and almost everybody in the city, as well as in the surrounding country, prepared to attend the picuic, which was given by the Silver Cornet band, at Strickland's grove. This grove is a beautiful ground for the purpose chosen, and by noon an immense crowd had gathered under its cool and pleasant shade. All the backs in the city were busy driving to and from the ground, but they were not sufficient to carry all who wished to attend. The Water Valley band, which had been in vited to attend, arrived on the morning train, and was conducted by their hosts to the grove, where the visitors soon became favorites and, we hope, enjoyed themselves thor-oughly. They had not been upon the grounds long, however, before one of their number was handed a telegram informing oin that his brother—the advance agent of a circus traveling in Texas-had been shot and killed. This gentleman, Mr. Brown, immediately informed his companions of this sad news and hastened to the depot, where he took the 2 o'clock train to Water Valley. This event cast a gloom over the ground for the rest of the day. The festivities, however, continued. Mr. Ben West won the cake in the sack race, one of the most ludicrous of contests. The pig race, in which a dozen or portance, both from a social, political and commercial standpoint. With a Western man we can easily carry Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, and with those States thus assured the ticket can be elected by a very large majority."

The pig race, in which a dozen or more negroes chased a shaved and greased porker, was won by a big black fellow in the service of Mr. Witkins Wallace, one of our popular young imerchants, who offered his man half a fdollar besides the pig as a reward for catching it. The walking-match proved an interesting and well-contested race. Five gentlemen entered the ring. The track was in good condition, and was nearly an eighth of a mile in circumference. The contestants, John S. Hastings, J. Millham, Levy Manning, J. McClockey, and G. W. Crook, stood at the end of the race, upon the scorer's board, in the order named. Hastings made eighty-five rounds, and won the another, until Hastings was alone and two rounds ahead of his colored competitor, Millham. The judges declared Hastings entitled to the prize of $25, which was delivered to him. The picnic would have been the finest of the season had the seather been favorable. Toward 3 o'clock in the evening the skies began to darken and look very threatening. The crowd became alarmed and a great number of people left the grounds. Just before 6 o'clock a thun-der-storm burst ever the grove, the wind blew nearly a gale and a drenching rain poured down. There were but few places of shelter, and the ladies were buried to these as quickly as possible. Most of the gentle-men, however, and some of the ladies also, were dreuched with the rain. The picnic was broken up, and what promised to be a day of pleasure was spoiled by the rain.

Quite regardless of expense,
All I ask that she's utter,

Imp of course, and lank she must be,
Clad in minor tones of green,
Consummately soulful, earnest,
Must she be, my precious queen. We shall feast on lilies daily. Qualising draughts of beauty fair, With a dish of ferus ou Sunday, Or a peacock's feathers rare. Thus shall flow our lives forever, Like two seconds. Like two gently gurgling rills. Breathing posey and too-too, And her dad shall foot the bills.

The Court finally ruled that it was only necessary for the government to present their own side of the case. If the defense knew of any paper which they believed would help their case they could get it through an order of the Court. The proper way was for the prosecution to restore to the files of the department all of the papers they did not purpose using, when the defense could secure any of them applicable to the case.
